Two of these are Lit in History Pre-1900 and Lit in History Post-1900. Two of these are in two other categories (Difference and Literary Traditions/Film and Cultural Studies; and Creative Writing). See your advisor (!) and consult the undergraduate catalog, advising worksheets, and Degree Works for more detailed information.

Note 2: Consider studying abroad during your Junior year. Many programs offer courses that will transfer in as 300+ level English courses. See the Associate Chair of English if you plan to study abroad this year or any year.

Note 3: Start planning for your internship in your Junior year; it can be taken during either semester of your Senior year. ENGL 495 is an online practicum for students working at internships, and it is the capstone for the WRP concentration.
